Beyond Measure

GIRLS ON THE RUN 2017 ANNUAL REPORT
Impact. It’s a word that is used quite frequently in the non-profit sector to describe the effect of one’s actions on others. At Girls on the Run, we have repeatedly used it over the decades to describe the positive transformation we are inspiring in the lives of the girls we serve. Indeed, we receive countless letters about this impact from girls, parents, volunteers, principals and community members. It is truly gratifying to see our mission – inspiring girls to be joyful, healthy and confident – coming to life in such a profoundly personal way.

While individual stories are incredibly meaningful, they are not an official measure of impact. Therefore, we were thrilled to release the formal findings this year from an external longitudinal study that our board of directors commissioned in 2013. This study was ground-breaking; while we have had outside researchers analyzing our program outcomes since 2001, this was the first rigorous evaluation conducted to determine whether Girls on the Run is having an evidence-based impact in the lives of those we serve. The findings were remarkable and validated what so many people have personally shared with us over the years – Girls on the Run is indeed making a positive difference!

It is not just the Girls on the Run curriculum that has made this tremendous transformation possible – it is also the people who bring it to life. Our commitment to quality is unwavering and in 2017, over 50,000 volunteer coaches from coast to coast participated in our nationally recognized in-person training program and were certified to facilitate our curriculum. We also continued to invest in our online learning management system so all these dedicated coaches are able to readily access resources and tools whenever necessary.

Our vision is a world where all girls know and activate their limitless potential and are free to boldly pursue their dreams. As such, we are dedicated to ensuring that our organization is accessible and inclusive. In 2017, we addressed this in a multitude of ways. We developed and delivered training for our 215 councils on topics ranging from structuring financial assistance to understanding unconscious bias. We also established national partnerships that provided critical financial resources to advance our access and inclusion objectives - including the creation of a summer program designed to reach more girls. In 2018, our inclusion efforts will expand even further as we pilot curriculum modifications created to effectively serve more girls with physical and intellectual disabilities.

Today’s girls will be tomorrow’s women. Knowing that we are having a lasting impact on their lives inspires us and fills us with hope for the future. We are grateful to our dedicated volunteers and financial supporters who share our commitment to a world where joyful, healthy and confident girls grow up to become contributing members of society. Together, we are making it possible for girls to recognize the vast inner power they possess to build rich lives of meaning and unlimited possibility.

With gratitude,
Elizabeth Kunz | CEO + Juli Marley | Board Chair
Our Mission
We inspire girls to be joyful, healthy and confident using a fun, experience-based curriculum which creatively integrates running.

Our Vision
We envision a world where every girl knows and activates her limitless potential and is free to boldly pursue her dreams.

Our Core Values
- Recognize our power and responsibility to be intentional in our decision making
- Embrace our differences and find strength in our connectedness
- Express joy, optimism and gratitude through our words, thoughts and actions
- Lead with an open heart and assume positive intent
- Nurture our physical, emotional and spiritual health
- Stand up for ourselves and others

What makes Girls on the Run different?
The evidence-based curriculum and formal volunteer training distinctly differentiate Girls on the Run from other youth programs. There is no other national girl-only physical activity-based positive youth development program that formally trains its coaches on how to implement the curriculum as intended and to create positive relationships in a caring and inclusive climate. It is this combination, an intentional curriculum and coach training, that makes the positive outcomes we see in the lives of the girls we serve possible.
We’re more than a running program. We make lasting, transformative change in the lives of girls.

Transforming Lives

97% of girls learn critical life skills such as helping others, resolving conflict, managing emotions and making intentional decisions that they are using at home, at school and with friends.

Girls on the Run

“I learned how to be healthy and the difference between being a friend and not being a friend. I am now a good friend and I am trying to stay healthy.” - Claire, Age 9
A powerful national movement

What started with 13 girls in 1996 has grown into a national force for good with over 1.4 million girls participating throughout our 21-year history.

200,000+ girls served

The Girls on the Run network of 200+ councils serves more than 200,000 girls annually in all 50 states and the District of Columbia.

110,000+ volunteers

Program goals of social, psychological, and physical development are achieved through the efforts of over 110,000 volunteers each year.

Largest 5K series

Participating in a 5K is the culminating event of the 10-week program. Girls on the Run hosts the largest 5K series in the world by number of events, with over 330 events per year.

12,000+ Community Impact Projects

The program inspires girls to build lives of purpose and to make a meaningful contribution to community and society. In 2017, this came to life through over 12,000 community impact projects created and executed by each Girls on the Run team.
Our organization is relevant and engaging

The Girls on the Run curricula was updated to reflect current research in social-emotional learning and positive youth development. The thematic curriculum allows girls to explore important life skills, deepen their knowledge and understanding, and use the skills in different areas of their lives.

Girls on the Run was recognized as one of the “Most Influential in Health and Wellness” by the National AfterSchool Association.

Our mission-based programs are accessible to any person who wants to participate

Girls on the Run invested over $12 million dollars to provide scholarship support to 45% of program participants. As such, over 91,000 girls had the opportunity to learn valuable life skills that they can use now and as they grow.

Thanks to the support of Target and Cigna, resources and trainings were developed to support the recruitment and retention of coaches, staff and boards from historically underrepresented populations.

Girls on the Run received the largest grant in its history. Thanks to a $1 million grant from Target and Always, 6,000 more girls will receive financial assistance to participate in the program. In addition, the curriculum will be adapted to further program accessibility to girls with hearing, visual, cognitive and/or physical disabilities.

Our organization is known and respected

A Social-Emotional Learning Guide developed by researchers at Harvard University and funded by the Wallace Foundation included Girls on the Run as a top research-based program. Girls on the Run was one of only three out-of-school-time programs included in the guide, a huge honor and acknowledgement of our innovative and distinct approach to Social-Emotional Learning.

Girls on the Run was featured as a speaker and presenter at distinguished conferences including the National AfterSchool Association and National Parent Teacher Association (PTA). In addition, organizational leadership contributed to educational publications and websites such as WebMD, Southeast Education Network, Afterschool Alliance and more.

2017 Progress Towards Our Mission-Based Programs

2017 Progress Towards Our Marathon Goals

1. Our organization is relevant and engaging
2. Our mission-based programs are accessible to any person who wants to participate
3. Our organization is known and respected
If you’re having a problem and someone is picking on you, or making you feel bad about yourself and angry, you just need to stop, breathe, think and respond.” - Sasha, Age 9
Girls on the Run is honored to have the support of corporations, foundations, organizations and individuals working to advance our mission and impact the lives of girls from coast to coast. Through their financial investment, meaningful activation strategies and significant volunteer engagement, our partners elevate awareness of our program and support our organization’s most pressing needs.
